

What to Do in Washington, D.C. in October 2018

by CORINA QUINN

September 29, 2018

What's happening in the city this month.

RELATED STORIES

SHOW ^

Biometrics Worked! U.S. Border Patrol Celebrates Success of Early Tech

Hit the All Things Go Fall Classic

This music and food festival just keeps getting bigger—and better. For this year's edition, running Saturday, October 6 and Sunday, October 7 at 🍷 Union Market, headliners are Carly Rae Jepsen, MisterWives, Maggie Rogers, and Billie Eilish. Strong start! Also hitting the stage are Jessie Reyez, Betty Who, Ravyn Lenae, Two Feet, LPX, Cautious Clay, The Aces, ALMA, SNNY, Oshun, KAYE, and FootsXColes. This year's edition focuses on "creating a more diverse music festival culture that celebrates the artistry, individuality, and vision of our peers," Rogers says. Saturday's set features an all-female line-up; and this year's festival features a partnership with Women's March for their national voter registration and mobilization effort, Power to the Polls. With the culinary offerings as considered as the genre-spanning artists who will perform, eats this year include Timber Pizza, JRINK, Pinstripes, Bun'd Up, Docklands, Shake Shack, Sweetgreen, and more. Tickets are on sale here; but grab them fast.

Eat at D.C.'s First Restaurant With Three Michelin Stars

D.C. enviable dining scene is no secret; but often it can feel it takes the world a beat to catch up to what's going on. Enter the latest badge of honor for area restaurants: Longtime special occasion dining-and-getaway giant

🔑 The Inn at Little Washington was recently awarded three Michelin stars—the first of any D.C.-area restaurant. It wasn't the only spot that got recognition for the 2019 guide: According to Eater, Siren by Chef Robert Wiedmaier, and Bresca, each received their first star, and 🍷 Pineapple and Pearls and 🍷 Minibar by José Andres each retained their two stars.

RELATED STORIES

SHOW ^

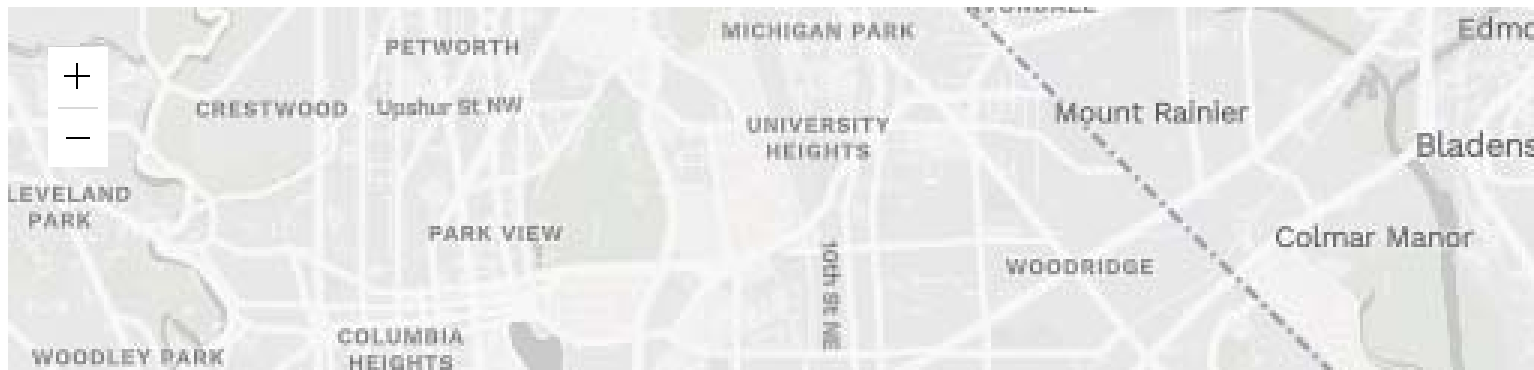

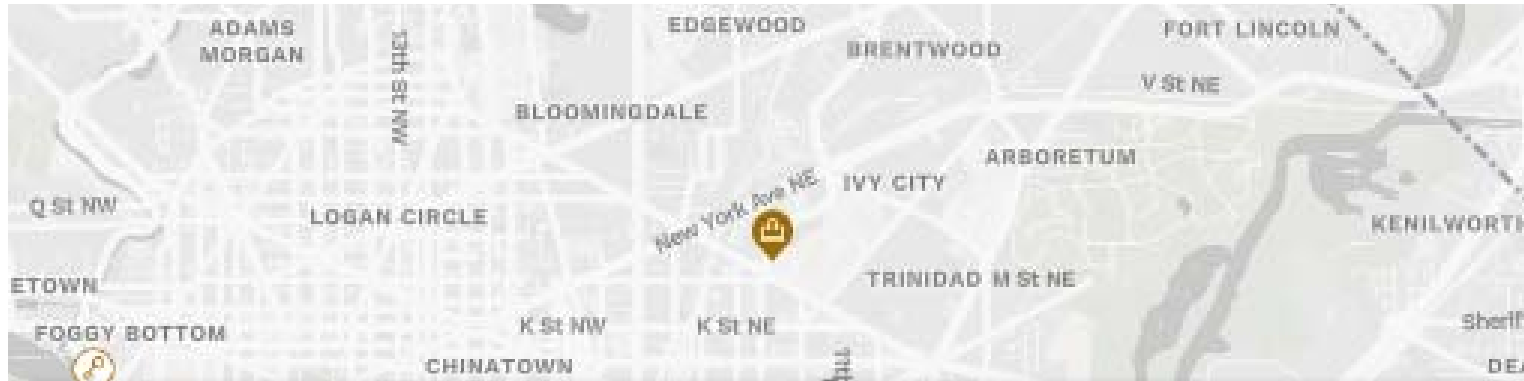

Biometrics Worked! U.S. Border Patrol Celebrates Success of Early Tech

Sandwich from Blue Collar Restaurant in Miami; and Ricotta Beignets from Dusek's Board & Beer in Chicago—all available at the hotel's Kingbird restaurant. ✦

MAP

Places We Went

RELATED STORIES

SHOW ^

Biometrics Worked! U.S. Border Patrol Celebrates Success of Early Tech

